

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

Methods and systems for representing characteristics of design elements on visual design surfaces are provided. Assorted design elements are represented by shapes on the visual design surface. Each shape may represent a different type of design element. A characteristic of a design element may be represented by placing an aura around the design element. A single shape may have several auras that represent different characteristics. Like auras may be merged to create affinity regions.